Welcome to Maple Leaf Forever

I'm not sure how I settled on a maple leaf motif. I started out with the idea of a big star, but it wasn't working out so I moved on. Maybe you would have better luck. Replace the flurry of maple leaves with a bunch of stars twinkling in the firmament. Replace the main maple leaf with a big ol' full moon. And replace the tree at the bottom with a telescope or an observatory.

I played the percentages, so you'll find Maple Leaf Forever to be flexy and stretchy. And you can bump up the text size a few times without making it break. Dare I say that it is bulletproof?

If you'd rather have two columns, just go into the stylesheet and change the percentages for those little sidebar sections from 48% to 98%, and make sure they're all floating in the same direction — left or right. Then you could adjust the percentages for the blog and sidebar IDs from the current 48% each to something like 58% and 38%. You are the master
